The Louise Kerckhoff Guest House is operated by the William G. Kerckhoff Foundation for Scientific Research and Education. The organisation was founded in 1929 by Louise Kerckhoff, the widow of William G. Kerckhoff, one of the major science patrons of this age. The Kerckhoff Foundation supports scientific research at the Max Planck Institute for Heart and Lung Research, formerly the Kerckhoff Institute. The Kerckhoff Foundation is located in the historic institute building at Parkstr. 1.

The Louise Kerckhoff Guest House is allocated for international junior scientists at the Max Planck Institute for Heart and Lung Research, who are visiting Bad Nauheim for a limited time during conducting their research projects.

The guest house comprises over all eight apartments, which can be alternatively used as 27 guest rooms. The guest house was opened in May 2015, after one year construction time.

There is no connection between the Louise Kerckhoff Guest House and the Kerckhoff Clinic.
